

Maryanne Makredes Senna, MD
Assistant Professor of Dermatology
Harvard Medical School
Cambridge, Massachusetts, USA

Maryanne Makredes Senna, MD, is a board-certified dermatologist at Beth Israel Lahey Health and Assistant Professor of Dermatology at Harvard Medical School. Dr. Senna founded and directs the Lahey Hair Loss Center of Excellence and serves as Principal Investigator of the research unit. Prior to this role, she founded the MGH Hair Loss Clinic and clinical trials unit, which she ran for nearly 10 years. Mentoring the next generation of dermatologists and collaborating with colleagues give her great joy, as does spending time with her husband and two young daughters.